Broadcasting

Broadcast time

The worldwide broadcast time of live, delayed and highlight footage of the Hyundai Archery World Cup circuit reached over 600 hours in 2018, including data from an independent study, close to doubling the amount across the previous season. Long-time partner Eurosport continued to provide exposure – as did NBC via the Olympic Channel linear and online platforms, and NBCSN. A new three-year deal with KBS, which came into effect mid-season, produced strong figures in Korea.

Excellence Centre

OS Scholarships

On 23 October, Marlyse Hourtou joined the group of three Olympic Solidarity scholarship archers already training at the World Archery Excellence Centre in Lausanne, Switzerland. The 22-year-old from Chad, the first female to join the programme, will also be coached by Kyeong Su. Sudan's Mahmoud Abdelwahab and Malawi's Areneo David have been at the Centre since 1 May 2018, and Ruman Shana MD from Bangladesh arrived on 18 June. The goal is to raise their level with a view towards qualification for the Tokyo 2020 Olympic Games.

Pre-world championships training camp

The World Archery Excellence Centre will host an international training camp from 27 May to end June 2019 with participants choosing their arrival and departure dates.

The objective is to assist national teams competing in the World Archery Championships in 's-Hertogenbosch, Netherlands. The training camp is planned for the period between the end of the Hyundai Archery World Cup stage in Antalya and the start of the world championships, allowing national teams to stay in Europe instead of potentially returning home between the two events.

For further questions or information on this training camp, please contact the Centre at info@worldarcherycentre.org or visit the website at www.worldarcherycentre.org.

Para Archery

Para Archery Seminar

Africa's first para archery seminar took place in the Egyptian capital of Cairo on 29 October to 10 November, with 25 participants from 11 nations across the continent in attendance. The seminar was split into two parts. The first week consisted of a level one training course conducted by World Archery's development agent in Africa, Khaled Lamandé, and Egyptian coach trainer Ahmed Hassan, and the second was focused specifically on coaching para archery.

Complete classification master list available online

An accurate master list of the approximately 900 individuals classified as eligible to compete in para archery events is now available on the World Archery website.

It contains the name, country, date of birth, classification detail and sport class, and the date and time of classification. The list is available for coaches, classifiers, judges and tournament organisers, who require the information to confirm eligibility. No other personal data is available.

For individuals with a provisional classification, the date of expiration has been added in red. These athletes must undergo a complete classification process before participating in a para archery event.

Despite the recent changes to W1 criteria, there is an increasing number of athletes classified to eligible and it is encouraging that member associations are investing in this area of the sport.

Athletes classified non-eligible for para archery may still seek to use an assistive device in able-bodied and open competition. These athletes will need to apply to a new World Archery panel; details to be announced soon.

She beat the previous mark, set by Italy's Tatiana Andreoli in early 2016, by a point. At the end of the first day at the GT Open, Kaufhold's score led the recurve field.

Events

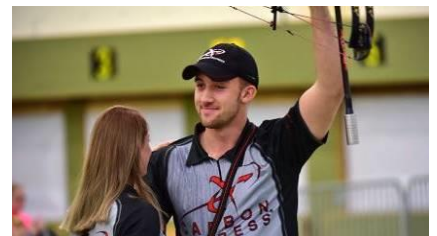

GT Open

World Archery's rebranded open-entry indoor circuit began on 23 November in Strassen, Luxembourg when the GT Open holds the first Indoor Archery World Series 250 competition with over 300 archery taking part. Sarah Prieels scored 595 out of a possible 600 points to match the 18-metre 60-arrow ranking round world record set in 2014 by Erika Jones and lead compound women's qualification. Braden Gellenthien, Casey Kaufhold, and Steve Wijler – who tied on points with Cedric Rieger – also took top seedings.

Fourteen-year-old Casey Kaufhold converted her cadet world record and top-seeded qualifying round into the recurve women's individual title on 25 November in Strassen. Kaufhold levelled her final with second seed Gabriela Bayardo in the fifth set, before delivering a 10 in the tiebreak to beat her opponent's nine and secure the victory.

Domagoj Buden won the compound men's competition, also in a shoot-off. He led Stephan Hansen by a point for most of the match but said, after recently changing to a back tension release aid, he found the pace of the alternate shooting in the final challenging. The world's number two-ranked recurve man, Steve Wijler, and Toja Ellison were the other two winners at the GT Open.

Kings of Archery was founded in 2011 and expanded with the support of Netherlands-based archery distributor JVD in 2018. The tournament uses an unusual Vegas Shoot-style, 90-arrow qualification format. Unlike Vegas, recurve archers score the whole gold as 10.
